ELECTIVE JUDICIARY - ANTI - FUGITIVE SLAVE LAW CANDIDATE FOR JUDGE IN ILLI-Nois .- Among the many innovations which Democracy has made upon the political institutions of the States, one of the most important and at the same time most radical is that of changing the term and tenure of the judicial offiby the Executive to a limited term and to election by the vote of the people. In the days of our revolutionary sires, great respect and importance were attached to the judicial department of government. The men of that day seem to have regarded the impartiality of the judiciary as one of the agencies by means of which the life, liberty, and property of the people were to be protected and preserved; and they also thought, and truly too, that the best means of insuring the impartiality of the judges was to secure their independence by removing them beyond the reach of the interferences and influences that spring from the cupidity of political schemers or the excitements of popular prejudices and passions. But in these degenerate days men are taught to think lightly of the wisdom of their ancestors, and such men as Washington, Hamilton, Jefferson, and Madison are looked upon as old fogies, fellows who did well enough in their day, but, if living now, would be entirely behind the times.

Most of the Northwestern States have adopted the new system of an elective judiciary. In Illinois, where, by the new constitution, the judges were made elective for a term of years, there is soon to be an election to fill a vacancy now existing on the bench of the Supreme Court. When it was proposed to make the judges elective, the friends of that measure met the objections of the opponents of an elective judiciary by the assertion that men would not be run or invest it with something of the moral sacredness lected by the people as candidates for judgeships on the merit of their political opinions. It was maintained that the qualifications of the man and of the lawyer, and not the tenets of the political creed of the individual, would be regarded in selecting the incumbent of a judge- promise peacefully composed; to the dark and ship. Such was the theory-now let us see what threatening and portentous evils from which it is the fact as exhibited in practice. Wisconsin rescued the Union; to the noble and magnanirecently ran a candidate for a judgeship and mous spirit of conciliation and compromise in elected him because he was pledged to nullify by his decisions the operation of the fugitive choicest spirits of the nation; to the exultation slave law passed by Congress. In Illinois there will be an attempt to do the same thing. We of the whole country as a timely and permanent perceive that an individual has been found in pacification of a most exciting and fearful questhat State vile enough to permit himself to be tion; to the contemporary popular estimation of used for this purpose. The Chicago Tribune, its character and force as a measure clothed a rampant abolition sheet, hoists at the head of with peculiar and inviolable sanctity; to its uniits columns the name of one Edwin S. Leland, form and faithful observance for more than the abolitionists in bringing about a dissolution genius, patriotism, and devotion of the illustriof the Union. The Tribune, in presenting the ous men who framed and adapted it no less than name of this Leland, says:

We regret the necessity that impels us to a that they can be trusted, so far as the Republican party can control their direction, only with tried and earnest men. On the Nebraska issue, by which we mean the slavery question in all its pects, Mr. Leland is sound to the core. Judge caton is all wrong—committed beyond reclamation to the doctrines of Douglas, and the partisan school to which Mr. Douglas belongs. is a radical, thorough-going, uncompromising Nebraska man, approving the pretended prin-ciple upon which that Great Infamy is justified and defended, and decided in his assent to the manner in which that principle has been carried into operation. Of the fugitive slave law—a at admits of no constitutional defense or moral justification—he entertains the opinions of his party; and if, in consequence of his judicial position, he has not become well known as its defender, he will be on the bench none the less an exponent of its obligations, such as the veriest slave of the slave Democracy would dewhich he is a leading member. We do not mean to be understood that he will warp the law or pervert justice to carry out his political views; but we do mean that his judical decisions would, while regarding law in its letter, be im-bued with its spirit, which cannot be hostile to humanity and justice.

With such a candidate as Mr. Leland, success With such a candidate as Mr. Leland, success is easily attained, and it must be won! In the contest with the slave power, which we see approaching and which is to be met, the judiciary, if we mean not to violate the law, must keep pace with the progress of the age and the onward march of the right. Friends! you have but a few days left before the choice is to be made. Act quickly, firmly, well!

Here then we behold a party putting up a candidate for the high and responsible post of a Supreme Judge of the State, not because he is a sound lawyer and a just, honest, peaceful, and Raw-abiding man but, on the contrary because he is a fanatical incendiary, who, having prejudged all cases of a certain class that may come bewilling to assist in robbing the people of the indisposed."

South of their property, to violate the constitution of the United States, and thus to promote strife among the various States of this glorious Union. Such a fellow as this is put forward as most worthy of the suffrages of the people of Illinois, not for any good that he has done, or will do, but rather for the evil designs which he cherishes, and which he will work out in practice if the people shall only give him a chance.

When the people of the free States shall have become so lost to all sense of honesty and common decency as to elect men for judges of their courts, merely because they pledge themselves to decide against the people of the South whenever the latter are compelled to appear before the courts of those States to claim their rights, then indeed will the bonds of the Union have been virtually dissolved, and the practical severance will soon follow.

Our able correspondent, "Silex," renews his strictures upon the Missouri compromise, in our columns this morning. He complains that we represented his late remarks upon the binding force of that compromise as addressed mainly to the denial of its virtue as a legal compact, and says, that a reference to his last letter will show that he assumed; without argument, that we and all others "would admit that it was not a legal compact," and that he "endeavored to prove that it was entitled to no force as a moral compact." This is very true, but "Silex" will pardon us for having thought that his remarks, nevertheless, were strictly addressed rather to what he had assumed without argument than to what he had assumed to prove. And he will pardon us for thinking the same of his present remarks. He again adduces a very conclusive and admirable argument against the validity of the Missouri compromise as a legal compact, but he has yet scarcely approached the question of its moral validity, save by naked averment. Our correspondent is undoubtedly a keen and shrewd logician, but, for once, we must think that he manifests a fatal facility in escaping the exact issue. He skillfully proves what he at first very properly took for granted, and takes for granted what he at first undertook to prove. He establishes the point that we and all others have conceded, and very strangely begs the question in dispute. He demonstrates the postulate and assumes the proposition. This may be consummate tact, but it is hardly just reasoning. The true point in question is not whether the Missouri compromise was or was not adopted and acquiesced in as a compact, for as to this there is no controversy, but whether the great and mo mentous events attending its adoption did not of a compact, and universally consecrate and hallow it to the popular heart as such. This we affirm, and "Silex" denies.

In support of our affirmation we point to the fiery intestine strife which the Missouri comwhich it was conceived and enacted by the and joy with which it was hailed by the people who appears to be willing to become the tool of thirty years as a law thus sanctioned by the by the unequaled national peace and tranquillity it assured; and, finally, to the very nature and contest over this judgeship; but the questions that may come before the Supreme Court of the State of Illinois are of such vital importance section at the outset, imposed a delicate moral obligation upon that section to observe its provisions when their benefits should inure more fully to the other-an obligation, vague and undefinable though it may seem, which yet held the quiet, and, it may prove, the existence of the Union in its impalpable folds. In support of his denial, "Silex" asserts that a mere majority of States have no power to enter into a compact, and quotes the Federal Constitution to that effect-nothing more. He does not thrust the lance of his inflexible logic into the cloud of moral sanctity which embosomed that law as with a living halo. He, indeed, condemns a certain moral compact, as based upon treason, but it is only the ideal shadow or duplicate of the legal compact which we admit and which sire. Mr. Leland, on the contrary, on these questions, which in importance rise above all others now before the country, clings to the faith and opinions of the Republican Party, of thick he is a leading number. We do not peace and harmony of the Union threw an unpeace and harmony of the Union threw an unusual sacredness, and therefore popularly styled a "moral compact"-this was all. But it should have been enough. That it was not is the dire misfortune but not the fault of the Southern

The Missouri compromise is now, unhappily, repealed, and the Union is again afloat upon a sea of stormy feud and excitement. The sole earthly refuge of the nation is concord, conciliation, compromise. Would "Silex" shut that refuge against the nation, or rudely dismantle it of its moral charm and efficacy, if his fine powers could effect it? We know that he would not, and yet, if the Missouri compromise "was entitled to no moral force," that magical virtue can belong to no existing compromise, and to no future one.

Mozart Hall.—We publish below last Saturday's official report of the committees on vegetables, fruits, and flowers respectively, and it pending in the Hardin circuit court, of the Louwill be seen by reference to these reports that is ville and Nashville Railroad company against the weekly exhibitions of this society have the Hardin county court, was decided on yescommenced with a degree of interest and activiterday morning in favor of the company. The ty never heretofore witnessed so early in the season. In the course of a short visit in the morning we noticed that contributions poured tionality and validity of the county and city in so freely that it became necessary to make considerable extensions of the exhibition-tables, and still they were literally covered with handsome flowers, beautiful boquets and floral designs, and with well-grown vegetables and finelooking fruits now in season. Many of the specimens of strawberries and cherries were of a high order of excellence, and we thought one or two samples of Black Tartarean, and one each of Belle de Choisy, May Duke, and Coe's Transparent cherries would have done credit to a Maryland or Virginia grower, places which are so famous for the production of those fruits. We incline to the opinion, however, that the various floral displays constituted the most attractive feature of Saturday's exhibition. There are several contributors in this department who combine with so strict a regard for harmony of color and proportion as to produce great artistic effect with very common things, and we were forcibly reminded of this magic power of genius and taste by a close examination of some of the floral designs. In one case we saw the ight beards of the rye-plant used for a fringed border, whilst the brilliant colors of the cochel flower jotted here and there over a green ground contrasted finely with other beauties differently colored. Appended to another floral design we noticed a light circular wreath which represented the handle of a basket. This wreath appeared to be composed of a slender branch, loaded with the florets and leaves of a small running rose reaching the whole length of the handle, and gracefully winding by faultless curves alternately from right to left, the whole resting closely upon the flat surface of the handle, which, at a little distance, appeared to be richly inlaid with little pearl er. His urbanity of manners, kindness, and sets, partly displayed and partly concealed by the beautiful wreath of roses resting on so rich a ground. On nearer approach, this inlaid work proved to be parts of the light umbels of the elder flower not yet fully developed, so nicely adjusted as to produce this illusion.

To those of our readers who reside in the city and county we need say but little-most of them are present, either personally or by delegation, to see what is going forward; but to our friends who live at a distance, and yet not too remote to visit our city occasionally, we may be permitted to say that the weekly fairs of the present season will afford one of the most favorable opportunities for amateurs and cultivators to acquire a knowledge of the best fruits in cultivation which have ever yet occurred west of the mountains. So general and so promising is the crop of peaches, pears, apples, cherries, plums, nectarines, and apricots, now growing in this vicinity, that the contributions to the fairs may be expected to greatly exceed those of any pre-

We feel well assured too that all who come, whether as contributors or visitors, will receive a cordial welcome from the polite gentlemen who constitute the committee of arrange-

KENTUCKY HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY AT | IMPORTANT DECISION-THE RAILROAD TAX decision is one of importance in itaelf, and still more so as, if it is not reversed, the constitusubscriptions to works of improvement are now sanctioned by the courts of jurstice. A summary of the points involved and decided may not be unacceptable to our readers.

The county of Hardin subscribed $300,000 of stock in the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company and gave her bonds for a part of that subscription. The first installment of interest was duly paid; but on the second class of coupons maturing, the county court refused to make provisions for their payment. Thereupon the company applied to the circuit court for a mandamus to compel the county court to make a levy to pay the installment of interest past due. This was resisted on the ground that the company's charter was unconstitutional and void, and if valid, that its requirements had not been pursued. Each of these propositions was deemed untenable, and a mandamus was ordered as prayed for in the petition.

The opinion of Judge Kincheloe is spoken of as one of great and marked ability, reflecting the highest honor upon the talents and learning of that distinguished jurist.

The case was argued for the company by Governor Helm and E. S. Worthington, Esq., and for the county by Hon. Elijah Hise. Gov. Helm spoke ably for six hours, Mr. Worthington's argument is spoken of as one of deep research and legal clearness.

DEATH OF CAPT. Moses McLellan.-After

lingering illness of several months, Captain McLellan expired yesterday, at the residence of Capt. C. Basham. Capt. McL. was the commander of the Cincinnati mailboat Telegraph No. 3, and had been in the service of the mail company for many years as pilot and commandmodesty marked him as a true gentleman, while his care and watchfulness inspired confidence to those who traveled with him. During his long career as a steamboat captain, we do not remember that any boat under his charge ever met with any serious accident or that a solitary life was lost by mishap on his boat. In this city, in Cincinnati, and at all the intermediate points, as well as among the traveling community, he was a favorite. We have known him for years, and we do not believe that he had an enemy. He has left a vacancy in the company in which he filled so responsible a station, that they will find hard

Capt. McLellan was a widower. He leaves an interesting little daughter about eleven years old, who has been for some time under the guidance of the excellent lady of Capt. Basham, at whose residence Capt. McL. was also during his whole illness. The writer of this had occasion to see him while on the sick bed, and he cannot withhold from giving his testimovy to the care bestowed on him. His illness during the last month was very painful and he required unremitting attention.

To the Editors of the Louisville Balletin:

South Union, Ky., May 29, 1855. Gentlemen: My attention was called to an editorial in the Journal for Friday, the 25th instant, under the head of a "A Slave Case," wherein my name, the name of my father, and the name of John McCutchen appears. We are represented as holding in unlawful bondage, certain negroes, decendants of a negro girl mentioned in the will of Thomas Davis, of Montgomery co., Ky.

Your informant starts out with a misstatement as to the provisions of the will, and he does this evidently with a view to impair the rights of the owners of these slaves, as far as such a communication of that sort could, through the columns of your justly popular paper.

The connection of Richards with the suit mentioned, the means he chose to conduct it, his subsequent conduct toward one of the parties and some other individuals not connected with the suit at all, contributed its share toward bringing about what he is pleased to call an excitement against the Shakers.

It is the settled conviction of many of the st respectable citizens of this neighborhood, that for a number of years past there have been individuals among the Shakers who have intermeddled with the rights of the slaveholders, tampered with the slaves, and induced some to leave the employ of their owners. Instances have occurred wherein Shakers have been accused of furnishing slaves with free papers, and such Shakers have fled from the country to

I mention these facts here, merely to show that the community have a right, at least, to assemble and to remonstrate against further interference by their members in the rights of the slaveholders.

There are a number of gentlemen in this vicinity who state that James Richards was a man of bad character in North Carolina, the State from whence he emigrated to this county. further information as to Richards's character, I refer you and the public to the report of an investigating committee which will appear in a Very respectfully, yours, &c., JOHN H. The New York Tribune and all the rest of the very violent Abolition papers are calling, in the most inflammatory language, upon the people of the North to arm themselves to the number of a few thousands or so and march to Kansas to fight the Missourians. Now we are pretty certain of two things-first, that the men of the North will not be so imprudent as to get up an armed expedition to Kansas; and, secondly, that, if they do, none of the Freesoil editors who are so clamorous for the expedition will be so imprudent as to join the enterprise.

THE STEAM FIRE ENGINE.—This machine was tried again yesterday in the presence of the city council and a large number of persons. In six minutes from the time the fire was kindled. it threw water. One stream, out of 11 inch nozzle, was thrown a distance of 202 feet, and it burst the hose. One stream, out of 11 inch nozzle, was thrown 172 feet, and two streams, out of 11 inch nozzles, were thrown 164 feet. We are informed that the machine realized the fullest anticipation of its builders, the fire department, and the citizens generally.

To the Editors of the Louisville Bulletin:

THE REPEAL OF THE MISSOURI COMPROMISE-NO. 3. GENTLEMEN: In your paper of the 28th ult. you represent me as having addressed my re-marks upon the binding force of the Missouri compromise mainly to the point that it was not a legal compact; and you proceed to say that you never esteemed nor styled it a compact in any other than a moral sense. A reference to my last letter will show that I assumed, without argument, that you and all others would admit that it was not a legal compact, and that I en-deavored to prove that it was entitled to no force as a moral compact. You persist in the belief, that, as a compact in a moral sense, "it richly deserved all the respect it ever received and more." Will you contend that the North-ern and a portion of the Southern States could make a compact—an agreement—forever bind-ing upon States that were not parties to it, ing upon States that were not parties to it, States which protes ed against it, and opposed it with all the means in their power? The majority of States, through their representatives, may bind the minority by laws, but not by compacts. Agreements are only binding upon those who assent to them. The compromise act, as a law (if constitutional), was bin ing upon all the States and their citizens whether they actually essented to it or not. But, as a compact, it the States and their citizens whether they actu-ally assented to it or not. But, as a compact, it could be obligatory only upon those that assent-ed to it. Virginia never assented to it. Her Senators and 12 out of 14 of her Representatives opposed it vehemently and to the last. So did a majority of the members of Congress from several other Southern States. Upon those States it had no binding force whatever save as a law. As to them it was not a compact either in a moral or legal sense. They had a moral as well as legal right to repeal it whenever they obtained the power.

But you contend that it was a moral compact between those States whose representatives adopted it, and that it was the duty of those States forever to maintain it as such. swer is that you would thus have deprived a minority of the States of the right, which they unquestionably possessed, of treating that law merely as a law; you would thus have subjected them inexorably and forever to the power of the majority. You would thus have made the mamajority. You would thus have made the majority of the States violators of the Constitution, which, for the purpose of protecting the minority, declares that "no State shall enter into any eaty, alliance, or confederation." thus have made the majority of the States uncare and attention that prolonged his life—with-lawful, treasonable confederates. You cannot raise an implied moral obligation to do anything which the law forbids. Your moral compact is upon treason. Nothing moral can stand on such a basis. legal or moral. Your moral compact is based

To prove that the compromise was regarded as a compact when adopted, you quote an arti-cle from Niles's Register of March 11, 1820, with the remark that Niles was a Southern man and the Register "by far the ablest and deservedly the most influential paper published in any slaveholding State." To this my answer is—

and Wade continually asserted that the compromise, when adopted, was regarded as a sacred and inviolable compact; but they were unable to sustain the assertion by any evidence except the article from the Register quoted by you.

Secondly, Southern men will probably consider Mr. Niles's opinion upon this point entitled to but little weight when they are informed that, though his paper was published at Baltimore, he was an avowed freesoiler, ultra in his opposition to slavery; that while the Missouri bill was pending in Congress he threw the weight of whatever influence he possessed against the South and in favor of the extreme measures of the ultra abolitionists; that he pronounced slavery a moral and political evil, a curse, and contended that it should have been confined to the States existing when the Federal Constitution was adopted and ought to be excluded by Congress from the whole of the Louisiana territory, including Missouri (see, as an instance, an article published January 8, 1820, vol. 17, p. 307). 1, for one, am not surprised to find this "Southern man" endeavoring to fix the Missouri compromise upon us as an inviolable compact. I am not surprised to find a man, who had such small regard for the constitutional rights of the South, declaring that the compromise act was entitled to "a moral force equal to that of a positive provision of the constitution."

positive provision of the constitution."

Though I deny that the compromise act was entitled to any force whatever as a compact, I freely admit that, so long as it stood up n the statute book, it did, as a law, exert a moral force over the people of the South, which "a positive provision of the constitution" wholly failed to exert over the people of the North. For thirty-four years the compromise act was implicitly obeyed by the former, and, during that period, and since, the fugitive-slave clause of the constitution was practically nullified by the latter.

In a day or two I shall endeavor to comply with the promise made at the close of my last latter.

Drowned .- A skiff containing Mr. J. Adams of Yolo county, and Miss Annie Alexander, teacher in one of the public schools in Sacra-mento, was run into by the steamboat Meda, on the 14th inst., one mile above that city, and the lady and gentieman were drowned.

The mint at San Francisco received, on the 8th inst., over 18,000 ounces of gold and 6,000 silver. As much more was offered, but could not be weighed during business hours.

The ruling of the Supreme Court of the United States in the Fremont case to the effect that a precise definition of boundaries is not necessary to the validity of Mexican and Spanish grants, is likely to create considerable excitement. On the 8th, the U. S. Land Commission confirmed a claim "for six square leagues of land on the San Joaquin river, beginning at the base of the Sierra Nevada and running down

The brig Vesta, destined for Nicaragua, The brig Vesta, destined for Nicaragua, sneaked from the harbor at one o'clock, on the morning of the 5th, having on board William Walker, ex-President of Sonora, and fifty-five kindred spirits. They are all fighting fellows, armed to the teeth, for the purpose, as it is understood, of taking part in the internal troubles of Nicaragua. The vessel was in the hands of the sheriff at the time she left, but they managed the keeper by threats, and set him on shore at rance of tne na

PARTICULARS OF THE BURNING OF THE KEY-PARTICULARS OF THE BURNING OF THE REY-STONE STATE.—About twelve o'clock Thursday night, while lying at Florence Landing, Illinois river, taking on wood, the steamer Keystone State, Capt. Ruggles, bound for this port, caught fire among some freight just aft the boilers, which communicated to the boiler deck, and in a few minutes, notwithstanding the exertions to extinguish the flames, the boat was burned to the water's edge.

As soon as the boat was discovered to be or fire, the alarm was given to the passengers, who were quietly slumbering in their berths unconscious of the danger impending. They began to rush forth from their staterooms into the cabin, and by the time they were all aroused the boat amidships was on fire from the lower to the hurricane deck, thus cutting off egress from the after to the forward part of the boat. Fortu-nately there were not many passengers on board, or the loss of life might have been severe. Those who could, got ashore by the stage planks; but the most of those in the latter end of the boat plunged into the river and swam ashore. All the cabin passengers but one saved themselves; the unfortunate victim was Mrs. Green, the wife of Dr. Green, of Bellville.

Four of the crew are missing, and were doubtless burned to death or drowned. They from Allegheny City. Nothing is known of the French fireman, except that he was mis-

Nobody saved anything. The books, papers, part of the money in the safe, most of the officers' and passengers' baggage, and every pound of the freight were destroyed.

The Keystone State was recently purchased at Pittsburg for the Illinois river trade by Capt.

Willard, for $14,000. Willard, for $14,000.
The cargo was composed of between four and five thousand sacks of grain, chiefly corn; 400 or 500 bbls. whisky and lard, and a few smaller lots of sundries.—St. Louis News, June 2. LIFE IN A RIFLE-PIT.

CAMP BEFORE SEBASTOPOL, April 27. I have no news for you, but I write a few lines to tell you that I am in good health and spirits.
It is no use telling you anything about the slege,
for you see that in all the papers.
Within the last week I have been twice in the enches, both times in the advanced trench, and the rifle-pits in front of it, and, for the first time, the rifle-pits in front of it, and, for the first time, I tried the new Enfield rifle (a smaller bore than the Minnie). They carry beautifully while clean, for about twenty rounds, but then they begin to lead and do not carry so well. When I first saw our men firing (last Saturday, the 21st) from the rifle-pits, they had no idea of range or distance. Two of them were firing at the same place one with his sight up for the same place, one with his sight up for 700, the other for 900 yards. I told them it was too much, and with the sight up for 400 I out two shots in succession through the loophole that the Russians were firing at them from.

As I sat, about a quarter of an hour after-wards, half asleep in the pit, they called to me and said that three men were coming down from the batteries toward the town. I told them to elevate for 900 yards. They made them dodge from house to house. But when they got into the street, they thought they were out of our range, and coolly walked arm-in-arm down the middle of the street. I could not quietly stand that; I took the best rifle, put up the sight for 900, and, calculating the distance to be about 1000 yards, I fired high. The man on the right dropped like a stone, and the other two rushed into the house. He lay there for some time. They afterwards managed to get him into a house. This shows what the rifles will do when properly laid on.

Afterwards I saw two carts laden with powder-boxes going from the town to the batteries, at what I guessed to be 1,100 yards. I took a rifle, and soon caused the drivers to run for the batteries, and leave the carts to come as they could. Our men said I knocked over five or six, but I only feel certain about one. I was sent out to the rifle pits again on Tuesday, the 24th, but the Russians were very shy that day, and gave very few chances. I had a regular duel with a Russian in the nearest rifle-pit to us (250 yards). In about half an hour he gave up firing, and, as I had put about four shots out of seven through his loophole, I thought I must have hit him. I left a namesake of mine in my company to watch him. Very soon the Russian (who, by the by, was a splendid shot) fired again, and put the ball right through private—'s cap, because he did not bob his head when he saw the smoke.

They began to fire 68-pounders at us in the rifle-pits from the great gun in the Redan, 700 yards from the pit I was in, and, with two men loading rifles for me, I bullied them so much that they were half an hour loading the gun, for I had a very sharp corporal watching the gunners with my telescope, and directly they appeared I fired into the embrasure. As soon as I saw the gun was loaded I made the men lie down close under the parapet until they fired. The shot came close over our heads, but did no harm. The same thing went on again, but they only fired four shots at us altogether, and did no harm. We lost no men that day, but on Saturday I had three men killed and one wounded of my party by round shot. Two were only a few yards from me, and were cut right in two by a 24 pound shot. I have told you a few incidents of my experience in the trenches, and now take no notice of shot or shell, except to take the necessary precautions to get out of the way.

The Ways of a Bombshell.—A column of white smoke rushing up into the air expands into concentric rings; then follows the heavy dull report like the beat of some giant drum; and then comes the shrill scream of the shell as it describes its fatal curve and descends with pro-digious velocity, increasing rapidly every instant till it explodes with the peculiar noise of "a blast" just as it reaches the ground. At least blast Just as it reaches the ground. At least it ought to do so; but to-day I watched the shells one after another, and only two out of three burst properly, though the range and flight were beautifully accurate. The Russian fuses are bad, but their artillerymen are not to be excelled when their practice is undisturbed. It was interesting—just as the man of pleasure in Lucre-tius liked to see the sea rage when he was not on board of ship—to look at the shell dropping, and to see our active little allies scampering away to their cover, and adjusting themselves to the closest possible connection with mother earth, till the hurling masses had gone by them. Any man with moderate confidence and experience may despise round shot at long ranges if he only sees the guns from which they come discharged. Well we won't say despise exactly, but at all events "evade." But a shell is a diabolical invention, which no one can regard as it approaches without a certain degree of misgiving that a triangular piece of jagged iron may be whizzed through his internal economy at the shortest possible notice afterward.

If it is sent from a gun, it fizzes and roars through the air and sends its fragments before it, the cone of dispersion, which is the neat phrase used by the learned militant to imply the direction of the bits of shell (or its contents, when it is filled with bullets, &c.), being in the direction the shell has taken from the gun, and the fragments being propelled with a propor-tion on the velocity of the shell at the moment of explosion. If it be discharged from a mortar, it whistles gently and delicately, giving a squeak and a roar now and then as it rises to its greatest elevation, and then, rushing downward with a shriller whistle toward the point, its fragments are projected all around radially, and are propelled merely by the force of the burst-ing charge. A man behind a bomb or at the side of it is just as likely to be hit as a man before it when it bursts in that way; whereas, the pieces from a shell from a gun in nearly every instance fly forward, so that a person behind it or outside of the limits of the cone of dispersion is safe. Unless the shell or bomb bursts in front of a body of men in the air, a very considerable degree of safety may be attained by the men throwing themselves flat on the ground inasmuch as the pieces of a shell which bursts on the earth fly upward from the point where they encounter the maximum resistance.

Of course if a bomb burst over a man on the ground, or if a shell explodes in the air in front of a man, there is no great safety gained by his throwing himself down beyond the consequent reduction of the amount of vertical exposure. doubtless burned to death or drowned. They were the steward, second seward, chambermaid (colored), and a fireman (Frenchman). The steward was a free colored man, residing in this city, and named Ben Quills. He leaves a wife and children. The second steward was named Aaron Stockton, and belonged in Pittsburg; the chambermaid, named Emily Austin. is a splendid shot," that it may have carried misery and sorrow into some happy household. The smoke clears away, the men get up, they gather round one that moves not, or who is racked with mortal agony; they bear him away, a mere black speck, and a few shovelfuls of mud mark for a little time the resting-place of the poor soldier, whose wife, or mother, or children, or sisters are left destitute of all solace, save memory and the sympathy of their country. or sisters are left destitute of all solace, save memory and the sympathy of their country. One such little speck I watched to-day, and saw quietly deposited on the ground inside a trench. Who will let the inmates of that desolate cottage in Picardy, or Gascony, or Anjou know of their bereavement? However, there goes another their bereavement?

ther shell, and it does nothing but knock up a cloud of snow and dust. Variety and Vagaries of the Russian Projec-tiles.—The Russians treat us to a pleasing vari-ety in the way of projectiles. First comes the round shot of all sizes, which rushes past you with a shriek something like a railway badly blown. Next comes the grape, which flies badly blown. Next comes the grape, which like slower and round, like a large covey of strong birds flying very swiftly. Then comes a gun-shell, which approaches like a round shot, but has the pleasing trick of bursting when it reaches you, so that you have to run a double risk-first of the shot itself and then of the pieces Next comes the mortar shell, which, though really the worst of the large projectiles, I somehow dread the least; it remains in the air for nearly half a minute, and in the night you can see it quite plainly, owing to its bearing the fuse. It glances along very gracefully, rising to a great height, and making a gentle whistle every now and then like a peatwit or plover, which be-comes louder and louder till it drops. Although you can see it all the way, it is a most difficult thing to tell where it will fall, and none but the oldest hands (men of whom it is said they had got so inured to fire that a cannon-ball would hop off the pit of their stomachs) can really make a good guess as to where it will drop.

What makes it worse than a gun-shell is that the former flying so low retains its impetus, so that if it is once past you before it bursts, all the pieces will continue to fly forward and you are safe; whereas, as the mortar-shell is pitched as high as it will go into the air, and then drops, the pieces have no other impetus than what the bursting charge gives them to fly in every direction for a radius of upward of 200 yards, and sometimes considerably more. But my greatest horror of all, and the deadliest foe we have, is the Russian rifle-bullet. It is not so perfect as ours, but, as Mercutio says, "It will do well enough." I give you a sketch of it the size of life. (Here is given an admirable pen-and-ink sketch of the bullet, which is, like the English, conical). This little gentleman gives you no warning, but flies about all day long, and ranges 1,200 yards.

It is generally conceded that the average price is one cent a pound lower than last week, and still it is fully 12c a pound.

A good many cattle sold for 13c, a small number for 13½c, and a few early in the morning at 14c; but as soon as the butchers described by the sold for 13c, a small as soon as the butchers described by the sold for 13c, a small set of the yards they held back and the price for first quality settled pretty firm upon 13c, with a tolerable fair estimation of weights. Joseph Batchelor bought 224 fair quality common stock Indiana tand 5 year old steers, fat'ed by White & Garnett, on Nine-Mile Prairie, Tippecance county, for 5c a pound live weight. To an old resident of Indiana, who has bought and sold beef in the quarters at 1 1 62 year a pound, this price of 5c a pound live weight on the Wabash, sounds almost Munchau-

By a lucky sale he makes money, but any man who pays 5c live weight for cattle in Indiana. Illinois, or other Western States, will be a little more sure of losing than making money. It will be noticed that we continue to receive three-fourths of our whole supply from the West. One of the best droves in the yards is '74 head from Indiana, by McCullom & Caldwell. Gurney sold Il of them to Chris. Gwyer for $115 cash. Both parties called it 13c. They are nice, fat 4-year old steers. Some of the same drove brought $125, and all will average 13c, as they are very even, and second choice sell for as much a pound as the fattest.

SHOOTING AFFRAY .- A bloody fight occurred on the square yesterday in which two men were shot, one of them very dangerously. The latter, whose name we learn is Fullbright, was not implieated in the quarrel, and accidentally received two shots, both balls entering to the left of his spine, passing out through the left side and lodging in his arm.

The names of the other parties are Adams, two Caseys, father and son. The elder Casey was badly shot in the thigh, and the son severely cut in the hand —Nash. Gaz., June 3.

EPISCOPAL ANNUAL CONVENTION. day's Session.—After prayer by the Bishop, the Rev. H. M. Dennison called the attention of the Convention to a paragraph in one of the Cincinnati papers, as to the course of debate on the day previous, and censured severely the reporter of the proceedings for his abuse of the privileges of the floor of Convention which had been freely given him. The gentleman who in the heat of debate had characterized the debate as being "disgraceful and disgusting," disclaims having introduct the results of the formula of the second gaged in the debate, but as being applicable to subject before Convention.

After some informal remarks as to the Shelby College dispute, the following preamble and resolution was adopted:

Whereas, The Directors of Shelby College
did, in May, 1854, declare the chair of theolyy vacant; therefore, in the opinion of this Convention, Dr. Waller is not entitled to any compensation for giving instructions since that date to students of theology; and, therefore,

Resolved, That where, in the opinion of the ecclesias ical authority of this diocese, pious young men should receive instructions in theology, that upon the recommendation of such authority, the trustees of the theological fund are anthorized to make such provisions.

The subject of the lottery fund to arise from a scheme granted by the Legislature of Kentucky, for the benefit of Shelby College, which has been the matter of much discussion for years in the Convention, was disposed of by referring the same to the Directors of Shelby College, in connection with Dr. Waller, to make such disposition as they may think fit.

In the matter of charges preferred against Bishop Smith by Dr. Waller, the committee to whom they were referred reported that they do not deem it necessary to take any action, as they have been sufficiently considered by the convention, and leave to withdraw the same was granted.

After religious services, the convention adjourned sine die.

New Book. New Book.

THE Castle Builders, by the author of "Hearts' Ease," "The Leir of Redeliffe," &c. D. Appleton & Co. New York. A simple but beautiful story, told in a simple and beautiful ananer. The author studiously avoids all foreed and unnatural incidents, and the equally fashionable affectation of extravagant language. It is destined to great popularity among all classes of readers, for its sketches of life seem to us at once lively, spirited, pathetic, as well as graceful and vivid. All who read it will become interested in its fascinating pages, and close it with the impression that it is a good book, and deserving of universal popularity.
